
CFH Women's Network

Mission and Strategic Plan 2020-21

Leadership

Beth Allison Barr
CFH President

Associate Dean, Graduate School
Associate Professor of History
Baylor University
Beth_Barr@baylor.edu

Elise Leal
CFH Women's Network Director

Assistant Professor of History
Whitworth University
eal@whitworth.edu

Katherine Goodwine
Assistant to the CFH President

PhD Student, History
Baylor University
katherine_goodwine1@baylor.edu

Participation

If you are interested in participating in the mentorship and/or writing group initiatives, please fill out the participant survey HERE. Survey responses will only be shared with the CFH Women's Network leadership.

If you want to be included in the CFH Women's Network Conference Database, submit your information HERE.

Mission

The CFH Women's Network promotes the visibility, productivity, and advancement of female historians within the organization, while also supporting scholarship on the history of women and gender.

Strategic Plan

For the academic year 2020-21, the CFH Women's Network will pursue this mission through three initiatives:

- Increasing presentations by women at CFH conferences and expanding the number of panels devoted to topics on women and gender
- Facilitating meaningful mentoring relationships between women in the network
- Organizing writing groups dedicated to supporting scholarly productivity among female faculty and graduate students

Timeline

October 2020-January 2021: Compile database of CFH members who are interested in forming a) panels comprised of only female presenters, and/or b) panels, roundtables, or other types of presentations focused exclusively on topics related to women's and gender history. The database will be circulated to CFH members alongside the 2021 conference Call for Papers.

September-October 2020: Collect information from the women of CFH regarding their priorities for mentoring and writing groups.

October 2020-January 2021: Consolidate survey data and use it to create mentoring relationships and writing groups. We will begin with the writing groups, with the goal of launching by early 2021.